

WELCOME!

From the UCR School of Education, congratulations on your acceptance to the Education, Society, and Human Development undergraduate major! We would like to welcome you as a Fall 2024 first year student.

We know that as you make your decision on where to attend college, having a direct connection to your undergraduate student support team, associate dean, and campus community is important to help answer any questions you may have and prepare you to enter your first quarter at UCR.

LET'S MEET AT ORIENTATION

To begin your transition into UCR sign up for your in person 2-day orientation. You can learn more about them here. During these two separate events you will enroll in your Fall 2024 courses and meet your new UCR support offices.

PREPARING FOR REGISTRATION

We have created an orientation portal to help you prepare for your registration during orientation. We cover topics about your major, enrollment expectations, and the SOE support team. Please complete the modules located in the portal by logging into eLearn here: <https://elearn.ucr.edu/>.

PLACEMENT EXAMINATION AND COURSE PLANNING

Completing the Analytical Writing Placement Exam (AWPE) is particularly important for students to do prior to orientation. In order to enroll in the appropriate English course for Fall 2024, you must have an English Placement. To meet UC admission requirements, all UC students must meet the Entry Level Writing Requirement (ELWR). The remaining placement exams can be found here.

Some students may have already met the ELWR due to SAT scores or Advanced Placement scores. Please visit the University Writing Program page here to view ways that you can satisfy the ELWR ahead of enrolling at UCR. Questions about the ELWR can be emailed to sheena.thrush@ucr.edu.

Please read the communications sent to your UCR and personal email from Sheena Thrush about the University Writing Program. It provides you with additional information about your AWPE that includes additional testing dates available to you.

MATHEMATICS ADVISORY EXAM (MAE)

The School of Education (SOE) strongly encourages all incoming first-years to register for the Mathematics Advisory Exam (MAE) regardless of their expected AP/IB results. Courses in Math, Science, Engineering, Computer Science, Psychology, Neuroscience, Business, Economics, and Health preparation courses will require a specific mathematics level as a prerequisite.

If you successfully completed mathematics at a Community College or at a 4-year institution, and it articulates to a UC Riverside mathematics course (Assist.org), then you will not need to register for the Mathematics Advisory Exam (MAE) exam. Please be sure to officially report all AP/IB scores and transfer coursework to UCR Undergraduate Admissions.

We highly encourage new students to finalize their math placement by July 12th, 2024. Students will be allowed a 2nd proctored attempt and all students who place into Math 3 are strongly encouraged to take the 2nd proctored attempt.

For students planning to enroll in their first UCR math course this Summer 2024, the July 12th deadline will guarantee meeting the registration deadlines for Highlander Early Start Academy (HESA).

FOREIGN LANGUAGE PLACEMENT

The exam will need to be taken by every UC Riverside student, regardless of AP/IB score and credit. Examination appointments are available starting Summer 2024. (Sign up here).
